Letters to the Editor Policy:

The editors, staff and publishers of the Alestle believe in the free exchange of ideas, concerns and opinions and will publish as many letters as possible. Letters may be turned in at the Alestle office located in the Morris University Center, Room 2022 or via e-mail at opinion@alestlelive.com.

All hard copy letters should be typed and double-spaced. Letters should be no longer than 500 words.

Please include phone number, signature, class rank and major. We reserve the right to edit letters for grammar and content. However, care will be taken to ensure that the letter's message is not lost or altered. Letters to the editor will not be printed anonymously except under extreme circumstances.

We reserve the right to reject letters.

About the Alestle:

One copy of the Alestle is no charge. Additional copies cost 25 cents. The Alestle is a member of the Illinois College Press Association, the Associated Collegiate Press and U-WIRE.

The name Alestle is an acronym derived from the names of the three campus locations of Southern Illinois University Edwardsville: Alton, East St. Louis and Edwardsville.

The Alestle is published on Thursdays in print and on Tuesdays online during the fall and spring semesters. A print edition is available Wednesdays during summer semesters. For more information, call 650-3528.

Bringing people together

Graifer unites graduates during college career and commencement

by Greg Maddox
Alestle Reporter

SIUE has put a lot of effort into creating a sense of community, and commencement speaker Matthew Graifer has worked hard toward the same goal during his time at SIUE.

Matthew Graifer is a graduate student studying in the field of kinesiology. Graifer grew up in New Jersey and decided to come to SIUE in order to do his graduate work. Graifer said the move to SIUE has been a wise choice and he has enjoyed his experience.

"It has been phenomenal," Graifer said. "I have loved my time in Edwardsville."

Graifer said during college, students are growing as people and it was a great experience attending a college that was growing as well.

own stamp on SIUE's campus.

"I told him to impact us in ways that go beyond Matt Graifer," Hagedorn said, "and he has done that."

Graifer said he knows what a typical commencement experience can be for students and is trying to make it more interesting for them with his speech.

"I'm taking a different approach to the speech. It's not necessarily academically centered," Graifer said. "It is meant to have long lasting value that everyone that is there can take with them and apply to their life."

Like his work with the Rec Rumble, Graifer said he hopes to be able to bring the students together with his speech.

"I know what it is like to be spoken to," Graifer said. "I want to speak as equals with the students, so that we can all understand each other."

Matthew Graifer was chosen to speak at the School of Education commencement partially for his work with Campus Recreation.

"It is different being at a school that is going through so many changes and trying hard to become more well known and respected as an institution," Graifer said.

One of Graifer's biggest additions to the SIUE community was the creation and installment of the Campus Rec Rumble. While working with Campus Recreation, Graifer decided to create the Rec Rumble as a means to build relationships within the staff. Director of Campus Recreation Dave Hagedorn worked with Graifer throughout the project and is proud of the graduate.

"It is a tough task to sum up all he's done for Campus [Recreation]," Hagedorn said. "He recognized the value of bringing the staff together and he came up with the program to help."

Graifer has already begun his first career outside of college. He has begun work for Sports Network International, an equipment management company that helps create and host athletic events around the country. Graifer's work with Campus Recreation helped him prepare for his career and put his

When asked if he will be nervous behind the podium, Graifer said he hopes he will be able to control it.

"I will be nervous, absolutely," Graifer said. "I think with my message you won't be able to tell I am nervous. My voice may be clear, but my leg will be shaking behind the podium."

After two decades of hard work in school, Graifer said he is ready to move on.

"I started school when I was 3 years old. I am absolutely excited it's over at 24," Graifer said.

Graifer did not divulge the contents of his speech yet, but he did say there is a clear message that all current students should take with them to get through the grind that is college.

"Don't just go to college," Graifer said, "it is not just classes, it is an experience. You need to network, meet as many people as you can, separate yourself from the bunch and make yourself a more valuable asset. But most of all enjoy your time here, get involved and stay loyal to the power of 'e.'"

Estilette leaves legacy in a non-traditional manner

by Jason Frazier
Alestle Reporter

Many students are preparing to be recognized at the upcoming SIUE commencement. Senior sociology major Laurie Estilette isn't any different in that regard, but her journey sets her apart from the rest of the graduating class.

Estilette is a non-traditional student due to her age. She said her college experience is something she will always value.

"I am a non-traditional student. I will be 40 years old next month, and I have lived through many different experiences in life," Estilette said. "This truly has been the most wonderful. I wouldn't trade my SIUE experience for anything in the world."

The many personalities on the SIUE campus have opened Estilette's mind to certain things she can do to bring them together for a greater cause.

"SIUE has been one of the most amazing experiences in my life. I have offered numerous opportunities to learn, grow and to interact with people who have been able to give me a glimpse into their life so I can see how we are similar and different," Estilette said. "I am able to mend those together and make a better world for all of us."

Estilette is far away from home. She said she misses warmer temperatures and warm feelings provided by being with her family.

"I am from Rayne, Louisiana, which is a small town in southeast Louisiana. I miss the weather back home first and foremost, beyond that I miss family," Estilette said. "My daughter and I are the only ones up here. I miss those interactions that we have together from family."

During her time at SIUE,

Estilette said she participated in many academic projects, such as a research project centered on relationships between gay and bisexual people.

"Academically I have participated in the Undergraduate Research and Creative Activities Academy, which [sociologically investigated] the association between gender identity and intimate partner abuse in relationships among gay and bisexual men."

Psychology professor Laura A. Pawlow, a mentor of Estilette, said she was impressed with Estilette right away because of the way she conducted herself in one of her classes.

"I first met Laurie in the spring of 2006 when she was a student in my Careers in Psychology class. Laurie impressed me with her regular attendance and promptness, with her strong work ethic and very high A's on all assignments, but most of all, with her frequent, thoughtful and appropriate contributions to the class," Pawlow said. "She was a real class leader and was admired both by me and by her fellow classmates. That class was made better by her presence in it."

In addition to achieving academic success, Estilette said she also had prominent roles in a few organizations at SIUE.

"I served with Student Government for two and a half years, serving once as president and another term as senator," Estilette said. "I have also been president of the Sociology Club and academic chair of the Psychology Club."

Speaking at commencement was something her mentors strongly recommended she do, according to Estilette.

"I was encouraged by four of my mentors to apply for it," Estilette said. "They collectively said, 'We think you would be a great speaker. We are here to speak on your behalf, so please consider applying.'"

In her commencement speech, Estilette said she would encourage her peers to take a look back at their time at SIUE and realize the tools they have gained can make a global difference.

"I hope to reflect with my fellow graduates on our experience at SIUE," Estilette said. "I also [will] talk with them about the lessons we have learned and how the values that have been instilled within us can be applied as we go out and make an impact on the world."

Estilette has plans to participate in Teach For America after graduation. Estilette said Teach For America will provide an opportunity for her to educate children who are less fortunate.

"I was selected by Teach For America from over 46,000 applicants nationwide to join the National Teacher Corps of recent college graduates," Estilette said. "As part of this program, I will commit two years to teach in under-resourced public schools."

Estilette is an inspirational student and instrumental leader who gives female and non-traditional students someone to look up to, according to one of her mentors, Narbeth Emmanuel, vice chancellor for Student Affairs.

"She was respected by her peers, well-regarded by her faculty mentors and proved to be a valued student leader," Emmanuel said. "Above all she is a powerful inspiration and an amazing role model to all students, especially to female and non-traditional students."

Persevering to make a difference

Closen to speak about responsibility at commencement

by Kari Williams
Alestle Reporter

Senior nursing major Breanna Closen of Peoria will use funny stories to cap off her four years at SIUE in her commencement speech.

"I think sometimes it's OK to use yourself as a bad example to get the point across ... I'm hoping that people will chuckle at that and take those words to heart....," Closen said.

Closen will address the university's five values (citizenship, excellence, integrity, openness and wisdom), using humor and anecdotes she has heard about or experienced.

"[I'm going to] try and convey what those values mean and how those values are going to connect all of us as a graduating class," Closen said, "and just try to help people understand the importance of taking those values that SIUE has given us and carrying them out in their careers."

Closen said she is honored to be selected as a commencement speaker and to show people not only what SIUE has to offer, but also to demonstrate what the nursing school has taught her in terms of professionalism and leadership.

Closen was involved in the Residence Housing Association her freshman and sophomore years, was a STAR up until December and is a member of the Student Nurses Association and Sigma Theta Tau. Closen said because she is a Meridian Scholar, most of her education has been provided for free and giving a commencement speech

Sean Roberts/Alestle

'It's your responsibility to make sure you use that power in a positive way and make a difference in somebody's life'

- Breanna Closen, nursing major and commencement speaker is "an amazing way" to give back to the university.

"I've really grown as a person," Closen said, "and I've made lifelong connections, and I don't really feel like I could thank the university enough."

Nursing professor Kathy Ketchum has been Closen's Meridian Scholar mentor since her freshman year, and, according to Closen, has seen her "roll and tumble and get over the hurdles."

"I did an undergraduate research academy project," Closen said, "and she really guided my learning in the area of research, which is so important in nursing, but it's not really something you get really heavily in your undergrad curriculum."

Ketchum said Closen was an excellent choice for the School of Nursing's commencement speaker.

"I think we need to have more students who step out of their comfort zone and do things that we wouldn't normally expect those students to do," Ketchum said. "I think she has the ability to really excite other students."

Ketchum said Closen is a "dynamic person who is going to go far in nursing."

"She is so energetic, and I don't know when she sleeps," Ketchum said. "She does a lot of very cool things and is always available."

According to Closen, the most rewarding part of nursing is the days when "you're so tired and you're dirty, covered in everyone else's stink," and you can tell that you have made a difference for a patient.

"I think it's those moments, those small moments that other people don't see and that don't get a lot of media coverage [that are most rewarding], but it's those days that make it all worth the while," Closen said, "and then you go home and take a shower."

Through nursing school,

Closen has learned the burden nurses take on for their patients, both legally and physically, taking care of them.

"A lot of people take that for granted, but that's a lot of power you have as a nurse," Closen said. "And it's your responsibility to make sure you use that power in a positive way and make a difference in somebody's life."

Closen said the most rewarding part of nursing is the pride of being a nurse and helping people, as well as the relationships that form among nurses.

"Getting through nursing school, by far the best part is what I've come out with as far as friends, people who I'm going to be in contact with for the rest of my life," Closen said.

Senior nursing major Erika Hildebrand of Mattoon is one of the friends Closen made during her time at SIUE. Hildebrand said Closen and she lived in the same wing during their freshman year. They studied together and spent almost every day together during the school year.

"She's got a big heart and very genuine, extremely intelligent," Hildebrand said. "She puts others before herself..."

Hildebrand said Closen represents what can come from this university and has a lot of great experiences she can share.

"She's a great friend and someone you can always count on whether it be with school or work or a friendship," Hildebrand said.

Hemker looks to make one last SIUE memory

by Kory Peal
Alestle Reporter

Laura Hemker's college career as a manufacturing engineering major is none too easy, yet she makes no complaints.

Her professors, Seref Karacal and Kevin Hubbard of mechanical and industrial engineering, nominated Hemker, originally from Bartelso. Karacal said he nominated her because of what she represents.

"Laura represents the perfect balance between academic excellence, professional and social responsibility and leadership skills," Karacal said, according to his nomination letter.

Hemker plans to make a lasting impression on her peers with her speech.

"The theme of my speech is memories and to always maintain the cougar spirit," Hemker said. Hemker also said she wants graduating seniors to know that upon graduation to "look for opportunities that will make yourself exceed and become successful in all that you do."

Hemker said her involvement within the Engineering Department during her college career played a significant role in her success.

"I exemplify the department, and I've shown the characteristics of a leader in my coursework," Hemker said. "I have taken on opportunities within the Engineering Department. ... I've really made my networking system since I was a freshman."

Like most successful college graduates, Hemker credits her own personal success at SIUE to Hubbard.

"He was not only my adviser for all four years, but he was also my employer. He provided me insight professionally and academically," she said. "He motivated me to get the hands-on experience any engineer would need in the real world."

Hubbard's experience with Hemker in both setting is one of the reasons he nominated her for commencement speaker.

"My experiences with Laura, both in a professional research center setting, as well as in the classroom setting, have been extremely rewarding," Hubbard said in his nomination letter.

Hemker said she also credited the industrial and manufacturing engineering family. Still, Hemker said she doesn't understand why she was chosen out of the entire senior class to be the commencement speaker, but she said she believes everything happens for a reason.

"I'm excited and thrilled to be the speaker for the class of 2010," Hemker said. "It's a prestigious honor and a memory I will forever take on with me."

As for her future, Hemker said she plans to work with Boeing as a manufacturing engineer this July. However, she said she would still like to further her education by pursuing a master's degree in engineering management. Hemker also said her outlook on SIUE has changed and that the university has been an enjoyable experience.

"You see a lot when you're here. Campus life is fun. The friends you meet and the memories you share are priceless. That's a network in itself,"

Derrick Hawkins/Alestle

Laura Hemker was chosen as the School of Engineering's commencement speaker. The ceremony begins at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Hemker said. "I've learned a lot. Everything is beyond all words."
